

Best Man Wedding Speech to the Bride

What an honor to be here , (bride) and (groom) , to be able to share the joy of this day with you as (the groom's) best man. You know , it has been said that success in marriage is much more than finding the right person; it is a matter of being the right person , and I can say without reservations that you are so right for each other. When (the groom) was in high school and college , he didn't date very much , at least not that I ever knew. He was very selective , preferring to spend his time on the basketball court or cruising over to the coast in his '61 Chevy that he'd worked so hard to restore rather than date someone who didn't meet the high standards he had se for his life's mate. Then he met you, (the bride) , and he was a goner. No more hours on the basketball courd , and his cruising days were over....and why? Because there was nothing he'd rather be doing than spending time with you. You were the one! In fact , it couldn't be more obvious to everyone in this room that you were meant for each other, meant to spend your lives together. And as you set out together as parteners on this journey called marriage , my prayers go with you that every day will be as joyous as this. Here's to you (bride) and (groom).
